Casing and Tubing

SPS Ltd and SPS Caribbean Ltd are suppliers of casing and tubing for oil and gas wells. Casing is steel pipe that lines the drilled hole to keep it open and to seal off the different geological strata. Tubing is the conduit through which the oil or gas flows to the surface. Pipe for both applications is made in lengths of approximately 13 metres (42 feet) with screw threads at each end. It is then screwed together on the drilling rig and lowered into the well to form a continuous "string" that can be 7.5 kilometres (5 miles) long. The diameter, thickness and grade of steel from which the pipe is made and the design of screwed connection are selected to meet the well conditions. In many cases the pipe dimensions, steel grade and connection can be selected independently.

The base specification for these products is API 5CT or the generally equivalent ISO 11960. In some applications these specifications do not provide a suitable product.
Sizes:
Tubing from 1 1/4" thru to 4 1/2" in all grades with standard API or premium gastight connections
Casing from 5" thru to 20" in all grades with alternative connections

All types of accessories for the above including pup joints, x-overs etc. Conductor pipe in any size or grade
